FTC draws up new proposals for used car dealers

designed to prevent used car dealers from fooling buyers about a vehicle's condition were proposed Friday by the Federal Trade Commission.

The regulation would require dealers to disclose in advance whatever they know about such things as actual mileage, the nature of prior use, and any major repairs performed in reconditioning.

And they would prohibit "any false, misleading or deceptive representation, directly or by implication, of the quality, performance, reliability or lack of mechanical defects of any used motor vehicle.

The rules would apply only to dealers, not individual sellers. Violations could bring fines of up to $10,000

Another key proposal would require dealers to spell out in advance exactly what service or repairs, if any, would be covered under warranty. If a car is offered for sale without warranty, that too would have to be disclosed before

Implementation of the regulations, pending final approval, could take up to 18 months.

In announcing the proposed rules. the commission tentatively rejected a related staff recommendation that would give consumers the right to have any used car inspected by an outside mechanic before the sale.

But the commissioners did officially open that recommendation, along with the formal list of proposed rules, to public and industry comment. That means it is possible for the pre-inspection idea to ultimately be incorporated in the final version after public hearings. The staff suggested allowing any prospective purchaser at least eight hours to have a car inspected before sale, while giving dealers the right to have an employe or agent accompany the vehicle. But top officials indicated fears that this could prove unwieldy and, in the end, costly to consumers because of lost time and effort by dealers who might compensate through price increases.

the proposed rules are necessary because "a substantial number of used motor vehicles ... are offered for sale ... with mechanical defects.

'Potential purchasers are not in a position to determine the mechanical condition of the vehicles under consideration and dealers, who know or should know of the defects do not inform the prospective purchaser of such defects.

WAGONS

The early morning sun cast long shadows as the California segment of the Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage rolled south on White Avenue in Pomona Friday morning, the first step on its 2,875-mile journey to end July 3 at Valley Forge, Pa. There were 70 riders and 11 wagons in the train which was assembled at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

70 join covered wagon train to Valley Forge

By PHYLLIS CANNON PB Staff Writer

The pioneer spirit is not dead in

It was vigorously alive Friday morning when ,70 present-day pioneers in covered wagons and on horseback rode out of Pomona to be Train Pilgrimage to Pennsylvania.

Some of the 70 had camped overnight at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. Others were trucked in early Friday

California Wagon Trail Master Tom Johnston of Concord was in charge of the wagon train which rolled out of fairgrounds Gate 7 on White Avenue about 8:20 a.m. Noue 'Bud' Pena of Camarillo is crosscountry trail master

Johnston said the day's trail would lead the riders south on White Avenue to Mission Avenue, then east a part of the Bicentennial wagon on Mission to Riverside where they plan to make camp in Evans Park their first night.

Arriving ahead of the horsemen will be the motorized counterpart of the train, a huge moving semi-truck and trailer, and a flatbed truck loaded with sleeping bags, suitcases and gear, and large freight trucks loaded with feed for the animals.

Some members of the wagon train rode in the Tournament of Roses Parage Thursday in Pasadena. Following the parade, their equipment was brought to the fairgrounds where, at 6:30 p.m., the horsemen held an encampment show attended

Following a 45-minute musical tribute to America and its heroes, the riders made camp for the night. They were up at daylight Friday, preparing to ride out. By 7 a.m., the atmosphere in the stables area of the fairgrounds was one of excitement and pending adventure.

Some of the riders planned to make the entire 2,875-mile trek to Valley Forge by July 3. Others planned to ride along only a few days or to a certain point along the route.

We're going all the way," said Mrs. Marie Scufiel of Fiddletown. 'We sold our ranch to finance the trip. My husband, Ron, is a Western artist. He'll be working and doing research. I'm going to take a lot of and hope to write a book when we get back.

Another planning to make the entire trip was disabled World War II veteran Norman E. Butler of Orland, a paraplegic who had hitched a pony to his wheelchair which was decorated with flags.

There were four official wagons in the train, the Bicentennial Wagon, the California Wagon, the Hawaii Wagon and the chuckwagon.

Seven others were unofficial, manned by mostly retired folks reliving the past. One small wagon was pulled by an oxen, a white mule walking along side.

Two of the youngest riders, girls who could stay with the train only until their holiday vacation from school ends, were Tracy Davis, 11, of Trabuco Canyon in Orange County. and Sharon Ulmer, 13, of Woodland

Officials explained that riders paid a $10 fee to join the wagon train, and then for $10 a day could buy feed for their animals and three tickets to the chuckwagon for their meals. Small salaries were paid the trail masters by the Pennsylvania

Bicentennial Commission. The train stretched the length of a city block as it slowly made its way out of Pomona. Families and friends called their goodbyes along White Avenue 'Goodbye. Grandpa. We'll see you in seven months." called a young girl, her hands cupped about her

Motorists pulled to inside lanes and police cars with red lights flashing provided an escort for the wagon train in the outside lane. The clippety-clop of the horses feet, and the jangling of harness and saddle gear were sounds that make the passing of the wagon train through Pomona more memorable.

From Riverside, traveling at 15 to 20 miles a day, the wagon train is routed through Yuma, Phoenix, and Santa Fe, then across Colorado and Kansas, as far as Ft. Leavenworth.

At that point. Missouri River barges will carry the train to near Cairo. Ill., from where it will roll northeastward across southern Indiana and southern Ohio into Pennsylvania.

At Valley Forge, the California wagon train will be met by four other Bicentennial wagon trains from other parts of the country, comprising an official wagon from each state in the union. These wagons will be displayed at Valley Forge for 21/2

Tourists who visit the Valley Forge encampment will be invited to sign a pilgrimage Scroll.

Holy Land tours led by clergymen are big business in the travel industry, but concern has risen in the church about some ministers who help promote the trips and make money out of it them-It "commercializes reli-

Damien's Mike Wetenkamp puts in a lay-up over the defense of Bishop Amat's Mike Dennis in Friday's contest at Damien. Wetenkamp scored 30 as Spartans won game 71-65.

Damien starts year right

By GRAHAM CROW PB Correspondent

It was a great way to end a vacation, a great way to start a new year and a great way to prepare for a tough upcoming league campaign.

Damien High's basketball team accomplished all three Friday night as the host Spartans scored an important 71-65 victory over Bishop

The win put Damien (6-5) over the mark for the season entering San Actomo League action which begins Toesday with the Spartans hosting defending league and CIF champion

Spartan head coach Bill Roberts thinks that his club, along with ha Chino and Claremont have a chance at taking the conference crown this season and was very happy with the win over the Lancers, who came into the Damien Gym iwth a fine 8-4 mark. "We played with a lot better intensity tonight," Roberts said in explaining the key factor to his team's success. "Our defense was also a lot better, even though Reul scored so much.' The "Golden Reul" Roberts was referring to was Lancer guard Karl Reul who scored a game and season high 38 points. But the 6-1 senior guard could not do it all himself despite 17 points in a frantic final Damien star Mike Wetenkamp matched Reul point for point in the last eight minute stanza as the 6-3 forward added six big rebounds to his 17 points in the deciding period.

On the game. Wetenkamp topped his 22 point seasonal average by tossing in 30 and he was also the game's leading rebounder with 15 boards.

Whereas Reul was nearly his team's entire offense, Wetenkamp received some much appreciated help from Jon Kolodge who had 17 big points.

Kolodge had not seen action in the past two Damien games (both losses) and Roberts felt that the Bishop Amat affair was an important one for his 6-4 senior forward.

We definitely need Jon when we start league play," Roberts commented before the game. "He's about 90 per cent now and the way he plays tonight will probably depend on whether he makes or misses his first

Well, that opportunity to get a reading on Kolodge's possible performance did not come until the third quarter when he did make his first shot (a lay-up) but his passing and mere court presence added greatly to the Spartan hopes.

The two teams were evenly matched throughout with each scoring 16 in the first quarter. Damien held a 32-29 halftime advantage. mainly because of Bishop Amat getting into foul trouble early in the con-

In fact, it was Damien's success at the foul line (as well as its frequencv) plus the inability of the Lancers to sink free throws that decided the quarter. Damien opened up a 10 point lead with a little over one minute remaining but then found Bishop Amat to be like a virus that was tough to shake.

In fact, the Lancers reserve Bill Olin driving in for a lay-in with 10 seconds remaining that would have made the score 69-67, but he missed, Wetenkamp came down with the rebound and made two free throws after being fouled.

So it's now on to SAL play and the Garey Vikings in what can be described as an "early season crucial" for Roberts' crew and the Spartans would very much like to keep 1976 going the way it started Friday night.

Winners of 11 straight and favored by 15 points. Ohio State dominated the first half in the New Year's Day classic before UCLA All-American quarterback John Sciarra caught up with the Buckeyes.

Coach Woody Hayes, who locked the dressing room doors and refused to talk, later said, "We got outcoached and just got beat. Our defense played magnificently for the first half, but our offense didn't play good all day. This UCLA staff just outcoached us.

As the Buckeyes, losers by 23-10, flew back to a weeping Ohio, the school canceled a planned reception on the campus. Athletic Director J. Edward Weaver said he called off the rally, planned to celebrate the just didn't seem appropriate. The players wanted to go straight home. Woody agreed.'

time in the past seven Rose Bowls that the Pacific-8 team had been victorious and the third time in the past four that Ohio State had fallen.

Griffin, the only Rose Bowl player to start in four games, did set a record. He has gained 412 yards in the four games. The Bruins appeared in the first half to be absorbing the same type of beating that came in the regular season when they fell to the Buckeyes 41-20. They had gained just 48 yards compared with 174 by Ohio State. That could have made the Buckeyes overconfident. Then came the comeback. UCLA took the second half kickoff and tied the game at 3-3 with a 33-yard field goal. Sciarra then threw scoring passes on plays covering 16 and 67 yards to flanker Wally Henry and Wendell ing dash. We spent the whole intermission making technical changes," said Coach Dick Vermeil, finishing his second season at UCLA. "They had been bringing up safetyman Ray Griffin to stop our running plays. So we went to short passing.

That strategy shot down the Buckeyes as UCLA gained 173 yards through the air on Sciarra's second half passing and added 229 on the ground. Tyler, who ran for just eight vards in the first half, finished with "We weren't discouraged at all at halftime," said Sciarra, a 5-foot 10 senior who weighs 180. "Look, we were supposed to be 15-point underdogs and the score was only 3-0. Our defense was doing so well, we knew if the offense could get going, we'd Mullenix said. The Spurs' troubles began when, after promising a National Hockey League team and selling season tickets on that premise, Mullenix suddenly announced that the Spurs would enter the WHA instead of the older, established league.

The Spurs formerely were in the Western and Central hockey leagues, both minor leagues.

If you were to visit the famous Petrified Forest there was a piece of solid National Park in Arizona you could see "trees" that lived millions of years ago. These are very unusual trees they are made of stone.

Ages ago, the trees were swept away by a large river, perhaps during a flood. They were buried in mud and sand, which prevented their decay.

water had minerals in it.

As each tiny bit of wood dissolved, the water left in its stone in its place. Today many of these stone trees lie on top of the ground because the softer material that once covered them up has eroded away. When the stone trees were discovered, people called them "petrified wood" because the stone still shows much of the wood pattern.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a ques-tion used here. Send your

Wolf Trap: a new, unique institution

"In Performance at Wolf Trap."
These words on KCET-TV, Los Angeles, last season brought to Southern Californians soprano Beverly Sills and the Metropolitan Opera doing "Robert Devereux"; ballet by the celebrated Russian duo, Valery and Galina Panov; Verdi's "Requiem" by the National Symphony Orchestra; concerts by the Preservation Hall Jazz Band and the New England Conservatory Ragtime Ensemble; and recitals by Bonnie Raitt, Mose Allison and Dionne

Wolf Trap? On a 117-acre farm in the gently rolling hills of Virginia, 15 miles west of Washington, stands a new and unique American institution, the Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts, the nation's only national park dedicated to music, dance and drama.

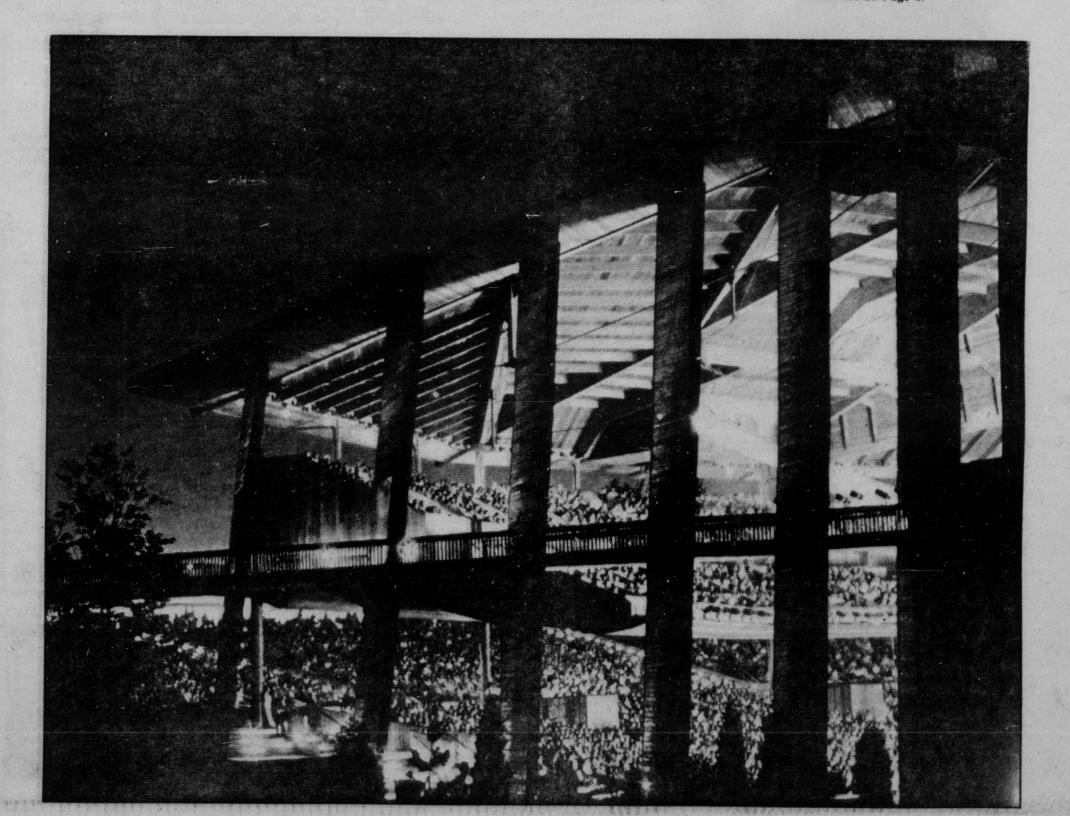

Wolf Trap was born in 1966 when the sprawling, treestudded farm of that name was donated to the U.S. government by Catherine Filene Shouse, wealthy patron of the arts, philanthropist and widow of the late Congressman Jouett Shouse. She also donated funds for the towering 6,500-seat theater of Oregon cedar, the Filene Center, named for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Filene.

(On March 13, 1971, three months before the auditorium was to open, a fire of undetermined origin swept through it, causing $650,000 in damage. Mrs. Shouse stared at the charred embers and announced, "We will build it again."

With help from friends and an unprecedented benefit concert by the New York Philharmonic under Pierre Boulez. the center was rebuilt and opened on schedule July 1.)

The Filene Center is a spectacular hall. The stage is 100 feet wide and 64 feet deep. The proscenium arch is 28 feet high. With an orchestra pit that holds 116 musicians, the threater can meet the demands of the largest opera and ballet performances. It is open at the back, so thousands of spectators can sit on the grassy slopes of a natural amphitheater and see as well as hear performances.

Doc Peirsol It happened

What did Pomonans do for a laugh back around the turn of the century before there were funny men like Bob Hope, Jack Benny, or even a senator (I'm just a country boy) Ervin to take their minds off their troubles? Well. just for the record, there were comedians in those days, too. of whom not the least among them was none other than the Editor of The Pomona Daily Review. And to prove I do not exaggerate, I shall today quote a few examples of the type of inimitable wit and humor that worthy gentleman was dispensing for the edification and amusement of his readers in the late summer of 1904.

Having printed an article which told how medical researchers had come to the conclusion that Acetic acid was beneficial to people who wished to avoid old age, our editor added this postscript: - "Carbolic acid will do the

When one of our local marriage counselors pointed out that for the perfect enjoyment of love there must be confidence, that iconoclastic Pomona Daily Review editor further elaborated: "It's much the same with ham-

When it came to the power of faith, he expressed his doubts in this impressive fashion: - "Certain people claim to have stopped runaway horses by faith but the process has not been tried yet on an unruly automobile.

Also, in addition to his ability as a humorist, that editor was a master in the art of understatement. On September 12. 1904, he reported:

The Pomona baseball team did not cover itself with glory in vesterday's contest with the Ontario nine. The game resulted in a score of 30 to 21 in favor of the On-

And so it would seem quite obvious that our Pioneer Pomona Forefathers weren't as underprivileged as some might think. With a humorist like that in their very midst, what need did they have for stand up comics to keep them rolling in the aisles?

Humble pin fashionable

By STEVE ELLINGSON

The lightly-regarded safety pin is about to take its rightful place in the world of fashion. For years this ingenious invention has remained hidden from view, safe in its reputation as a "friend in need". It could hold up baby's diapers or grampa's baggy workpants. But basically it was always an unglamorous workhorse.

However, the safety pin will no longer be hidden. In combination with pearls and beads, chain and wire. it's the basic building block for beautiful necklaces and earrings, like those shown here with Shari Lewis.

All these materials are available in craft shops and notions departments almost everywhere. You'll amaze and delight your friends with these creations that resemble those authentic silver and turquoise pieces created by Indians in the American Southwest.

U.S. will rely heavily on import oil in future

WASHINGTON (AP) -The United States will import in the next five years as much oil as it has consumed from all sources in the last 31/2 years, a Library of Congress study

The report, for the congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, also concludes that in 1977 the United States will be forced to import 50 per cent more oil than it does today

All of the increase in foreign oil would come from North Africa and the Middle East, the study

Energy may well become the 'Achilles heel' of U.S. foreign policy the same way as agricultural shortages are for the Soviet Union," which is forced to buy huge amounts of U.S. grain in bad crop years, the study

The study said U.S. reliance on Arab oil will grow. It said domestic oil production, as projected, will continue to decline by 8 per cent a year and Canada and Venezuela will cut back their exports to the United States to conserve their own resources.

It also concluded that Great Britain would become energy independent by the early 1980s and Norway would begin to export oil from its North Sea

The study's assumptions include early, successful discoveries of offshore U.S. oil surces and production by 1985 of the oil equivalent of one million barrels a day in synthetic fuels.

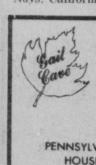

Imports currently run at about six million barrels a day and, the study said, will be up to nine million a day in 1977 and 10 million a day in 1980.

About 80 per cent of the imports in 1977 and 1980 will come from Arab nations, the report said.

If the Arab oil producers decided to impose a sixmonth embargo on oil to the United States in 1977. the report projected, the U.S. gross national product would suffer a loss of between $39 billion and $56 billion, with the loss of as many as 1.5 million jobs.

That "economic disaster" would spread to Japan and Western Europe and "hopes for major economic recovery from the current worldwide recession would be dashed." it said.

The study noted that the Middle East now controls 70 per cent of the world export market in oil.

where puppetry, mime, theater participation and musical programs are offered for young people, the Sunday-on-the-Run band concerts along the babbling Wolf Trap Run (creek), folk dancing, strolling troubadors, improvisational theater. There is a 200-seat dining pavilion overlooking the Filene Center, with buffet dinners and picnic baskets to enjoy on the lawn before a performance. Snack stands sell sandwiches, hotdogs, pastries, wine, cheeses.

Wolf Trap is more than a center for the performing arts, it is an on-going program of cultural and educational activity. The first aim is to present the finest artists in concert — Metropolitan Opera, National Symphony, organist Virgil Fox, jazz vocalist Ella Fitzgerald, the Joffrey Ballet. Seven of the programs were taped live last year and distributed nationally by the Public Broadcasting Service.

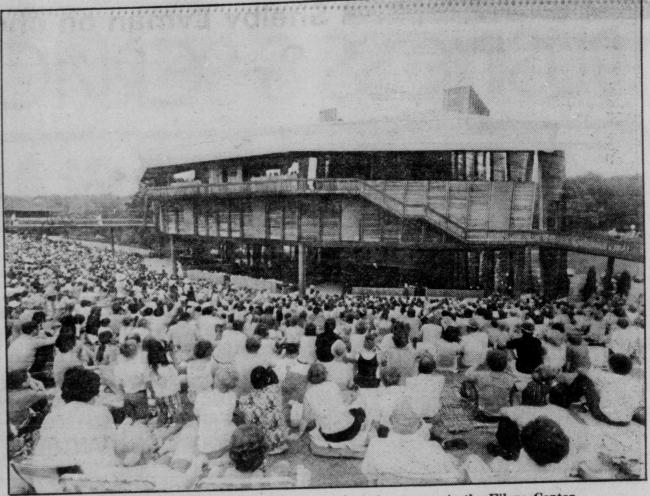

A second goal is to give young Americans an opportunity to be seen and heard in concert, stars such as Jessye Norman of Covent Garden and international award-wirning planist James Tocco.

The third aim of Wolf Trap is to give young artists—singers, dancers and musicians— the opportunity to study, train and perform. Auditions are held, scholarships are awarded, training is carried out, and the performances are presented.

Valery and Galina Panov, famous Russian ballet stars, performed at Wolf Trap in November.

Thousands sit on the grassy banks to watch performances in the Filene Center.

Wolf Trap is operated by the National Park Service, but the program is supported by the Wolf Trap Foundation, a non-profit organization that raises $500,000 a year to bring the national and international artists to the Filene Center. Numerous subsidiary organizations — Wolf Trap Benefactors, National Business Advisory Council, Wolf Trap Company Fellowship Sponsors — add their support.

Wolf Trap is America — the audiences dine on hot dogs or pheasant, drink champagne or beer, wear black tie or bluejeans. They see Bill Cosby, the Stuttgart Ballet, Jose Feliciano, the Met's "Madame Butterfly." They hear bluegrass, barbershop and country-western; they watch the National Theater of Great Britain do "As You Like It" and the resident Wolf Trap Company stage "Kismet," "The Crucible" and "The Creation of the World."

First Lady Betty Ford, honorary chairman of Wolf Trap, says "Wolf Trap is playing a significant role in stimulating interest in the arts and adding a special and necessary dimension to our lives."

The nation seems to agree. This year more than half a million people visited Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts.

ON THE COVER

The Filene Center, a spectacular theater of Oregon cedar, is the focal point of activities in Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts, America's only national park dedicated to music, dance and drama. The park on a 117-acre farm 15 miles west of Washington, D.C., was given to the nation in 1966 by Mrs. Catherine Filene Shouse, wealthy philanthropist and patron of the arts. Since it opened in 1971, the park has been attracting half a million people a year to performances by the world's leading artists.

New Orleans' Preservation Hall Jazz Band entertained Wolf Trap audiences last season.

An unmarked pewter teapot

By Dorothy Hammond QUESTION: We saw a pewter teapot exactly like the one shown here which has been in our family for 80 years - at a museum in Michigan last fall. It too was unmarked. Could our teapot possibly be valuable? It is in very fine usable condition. It was my great grand-mother's. Mrs. L.J.S. (Midwest)

ANSWER: Unmarked pewter teapots like yours are currently carrying price tags starting around $65, and working upward to about $80.

QUESTION: Is it true that wooden cranberry scoops have been reproduced? I know that cranberries are harvested in only a few relatively small areas of the country, so I feel that far too many examples are turning up all of a sudden for some not to be new. Please let me have your opinion. Mrs.

S.A.U. (North) ANSWER: because cranberry scoops have long been a popular collectible, new ones have been reproduced in quantity for decorative purposes - and have never touched a cranberry.

QUESTION: Among our treasured Christmas decorations is an old, old candlesnuffer. It is a very simple snuffer, made of iron. We inherited it some forty years ago from my parents. It is the scissor type, with blades pivoting on a hinge pin. One of the blades has a half round box, while the other has a half-round paddle that fits inside the box when the handles are together. Can you tell us any more about these? Mrs. O.N.N. (South)

ANSWER: The purpose of the candlesnuffer was to extinguish the candle's flame, in addition to trimming away any excess charred wick so when the candle was relit, it wouldn't smoke. Early handmade candles didn't burn as evenly as today's candles, hence the candle snuffer helped to correct the problem. Oftentimes, early candles smoked and sputtered, and occasionally excess pieces of charred wick would spiral above the top of the candle.

QUESTION: Please advise me as to the value of a lovely ten-inch Coronation plate which features Queen Elizabeth II, dated 1953, and marked Royal Albert Bone China. Mrs. M.E.F. (East)

ANSWER: Coronation plates like yours usually sell within the $10-$15 price range.

I have twelve, nine-inch Carnival glass dinner plates — Imperial Grapes in Marigold - and am wondering just how valuable the set might be. All are mint, as they have never been used. They were given to us by a relative who collected many years ago. Mrs. L.M. Sr. (West)

Carnival glass dinner plates like yours are currently being priced around the $30-$35 figure in vour area.

In 1970, this exceptional quickness was used to administer a powerful blow. In an international speed tournament including the world's best, Fischer overpowered the opposition with 19 points of a possible 22. Second place Michael Tal, an ex-world champion, was 41/2 points behind!

It is not hard to understand that such a speed demon of chess can afford to come a few minutes late for many of his games.

Women in Chess -A Dubious Role

Women have yet to make their mark in chess . players. But they continue to play a sometimes crucial role . . . as wives.

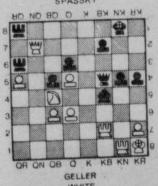

It was not long ago that Robert Byrne and Michael Tal embarked on impressive winning skeins after fresh marriages. And can we forget that Tigran Petrosian's wife had to goad him into winning the prestigious 1972 San Antonio Tournament?

Recently, the newly remarried Boris Spassky barely missed an outstanding victory in the Alekhine Memorial Tournament in Moscow. He finished one-half point behind Ewfim Geller who won their pivotal game.

In the diagramed position (after black's 33rd move) Geller played 34. NxP! and won easily. But this was Spassky's best performance since 1972.

"WARNING: This album is not to be taken 2 seriously." So reads a small notation on the inner sleeve of Cat Stevens' latest - and one would be well-advised to follow that instruction scrupulously. Even a seasoned follower of the Cryptic Cat would be frustrated trying to unravel the text of this peculiar release in search of a 'message". The elaborate packaging includes a 12-page booklet of excerpts from the book Numbers, conceived by Stevens and written by Chris Bryant and Allan Scott. It is obviously a satirical fantasy of some sort - we won't bother describing it here — and there is a tie-in with the songs (whose lyrics are included in the booklet), but it seems pointless to pore over the words studiously in hope of finding some significance.

Far better simply to listen: Cat Stevens is known as a lyric-oriented composer, but he also puts together some truly ingratiating music. His melodies, while a bit more similar than some would like, are nothing if not emotional, and Stevens has a nice way of bending and twisting melodic lines to lend appropriate emphasis. As usual, the musicianship is first-rate; Jean Roussel's keyboards are particularly fine, as are the stunning choral textures supplied by the Magic Children of Ottawa on "Monad's Anthem"

This is by far Cat Stevens' most sophisticated work, and we found it helpful to listen to one or two of his previous albums first, working our way up to this one.

'Tashi' premiere slated at MSAC

Tashi will present its West Coast premiere of Wuorinen's "Tashi" Jan. 18 at Mt. San Antonio College.

The 7:30 p.m. concert will be held in the Social Science Center Auditorium. General admission tickets at $4 each and student tickets at $2 each may be obtained at the MSAC Community Services Office, 598-2811, Ext. 361, Bldg. 4, Rm. 221.

Tashi (Tibetan for good fortune) is a chamber music ensemble which brings together pianist Peter Serkin, violinist Ida Kavafian, cellist Fred Sherry and clarinetist Richard Stoltzman. The group is the outgrowth of informal sessions of music making.

sions of music making.

Since their New York debut in 1973, they have been hailed for their performances across the country. They have been equally at home in an all-Brahms program at New York's Metropolitan Museum or on college campuses where programs of Stravinsky, Webern, Mozart and Messiaen's "Quartet for the End of Time'" earned them standing ovations and return egagements.

Pianist Serkin has been heard throughout the world as soloist with orchestra, in recital and chamber music performances and has recorded extensively for RCA Victor. He has played much of the literature of Olivier Messiaen, giving critically-acclaimed performances in New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco of the two-hour "Vingt Regards sur l'Enfant Jesus." He is also known for his recent performances of the six concertos by Mozart.

Miss Kavafian, winner of one of Europe's major violin competitions, has appeared as soloist in New York's Mostly Mozart Festival, as guest artist with the Lincoln Center Chamber Music Society, and in Alexander Schneider's New School Concert Series. She currently holds grant from the Gulbenkian Foundation at the Juilliard School where she is a student of Oscar Shumsky.

Sherry is well known for his recitals and appearances as a member of the Speculum Musicae and the Contemporary Chamber Ensemble.

Clarinetist Stoltzman has appeared as guest artist with the Guarneri, Amadeus, and Vermeer Quartets, with "Music from Marlboro" and in solo concerts throughout the United States. He has also recorded "A Gift" for Orion Records.

Tickets for the Tashi concert may also be purchased at Wallich's Music City or Liberty Ticket Agencies.
